You are amazingly ambitious and have high goals and you tend to use existing structures and rules to accomplish your aims. You are also extremely logical, structured and systematic in your approach towards work. ■

How Do You Relate To Others ?

You prefer to relate to individuals on a one on one basis rather than connecting with them in a group. In unfamiliar settings, you normally find difficulty to connect to people. Though you value relationships, you generally don't display it openly. You depend on assertive and outgoing people around you to initiate the interpersonal issues rather than you taking the lead. You have sound knowledge and intellect and many a times finds yourself in a situation where your intellect is higher than the group. ■

Your General Areas of Strengths

Your strengths can be summarized as 'diligent', perfectionist and self reliant. You are persistent in approach, having the patience and precision, you work steadily at a task until it is achieved. You don't like to be rushed in any activity or situation, and sudden unplanned change demotivates you. You are very self-reliant, with your structured way of thinking you often show your strength when it comes to organizing facts or working with precise detail or sophisticated systems. Your potential generally lies in technical work. At times due to the need to be precise and detail oriented you would be seen as slow paced, however your thoughtful nature and diligence improves the quality of decisions you make. You have a disciplined, purposeful approach, where actions are carefully planned with caution and care. ■

What Motivates You ?

Self reliant and perfectionism is the root source of motivation in you. You are detailed oriented, and plan with extreme details; however you believe that the goal is met if the process is adhered to. You have the need for time to plan and execute your work carefully and thereby delivering high quality job gives you immense satisfaction. You prefer to get enough time to adapt to changing situations as you normally have affinity towards stable and familiar environment. You also have a subtle need to be accepted and acknowledged by people. ■

Brief Description

Results Result orientation is a term used to describe "Knowing what results are important and focusing resources to achieve them." Occupation that is result oriented calls for goal oriented people who can see the outcomes they are trying to achieve clearly and vividly in their minds. They like to lead or manage others to reach goals. They like to convince others to think the way they do. They enjoy working with people and tasks. Leadership in general is attractive to a goal oriented person. Some typical careers that goal oriented people prefer are Leadership in business for e.g., a CEO of a company, Leadership in arts - music, dancing, acting, etc., Sales of big ticket items that require one individual to take a lead and make the deal happen, Engineering - building big and cool things. Apart from having a hands on knowledge in your field of expertise, if you are a strategist, multi-tasker, problem-solver, innovative, decisive, persuasive and diplomatic, analytical thinker, excellent negotiator with great interpersonal skills, having high sense of urgency and motivated by achievement, then you are perfectly suited to take up a career in this work category. Business and Commercial Operations, Hospitality, Management, Life Science, and Sales and Marketing are a few of the career categories that fall under this work category.■

Service This work category involves people who are service oriented and are predisposed to have empathy for a customer's needs and concerns coupled with the desire to meet those needs. Individuals employed in a service-oriented field make a huge impact on the community in which they work. Broken down into specific traits, this may include the likelihood or predisposition to be courteous and tactful, cooperative, helpful, and attentive - with a tendency to be people oriented and extroverted. They get along well with others and like to provide services. They enjoy working with people and creativity. For example, for those working in concierge services, the ability to work well with others, trustworthiness with company resources and information, dependability and reliability are paramount. Typical industries for social people include business organizations, education and childcare services, hospitality (hotels), real estate, and sales/retail. Especially in the hospitality industry, exceptional employees require strong communication, problem-solving and numerical skills, along with subtler attitudes and traits that are crucial to their success - and to their company's reputation. Social Perceptiveness, Service Orientation, Active Listening, Critical Thinking, Coordination, Complex Problem Solving, Judgement and Decision Making, Persuasion, Time Management, System Analysis and Evaluation, and Management of Personnel Resources are some of the essential attributes one must possess to develop a career under this work category. PEOPLE People Skills (or Social skills) are most often thought of as a set of skills that allow us to communicate, relate and socialise with others. People skills include both verbal and nonverbal forms of communication. They often are the way others determine our status, consider us as potential friends or mates, and consider us for employment or promotions in the workplace. Careers that are built upon relationships require that employees are able to build and maintain a client base. Being personable, able to remember the fine details, and having the confidence to market oneself are all important aspects of the careers in this work category. Working with people may mean providing a service, working with a team, or trying persuading others. Individuals in this type of employment setting will spend a majority of their time managing people, and everything that is connected with people. Sensitivity to others, Insight into others, Openness to others, Active listening, Speaking/presenting, Conversation, Respect, Persuasion, Team membership, Team Participation and Leadership skills are the major people oriented skills that encompass this work category. Good interpersonal skills allows one to participate effectively as a member of a team, satisfy customers and clients expectations, negotiate, make decisions, manage time efficiently, take responsibility, and work effectively with other employees, leading to a better working environment which can be less stressful. If one has got outstanding relationship-building skills, or if one has mastered the art of networking, the careers categories that one might be particularly suited to are Business commercial and Operations, Education and training, Management, Life Sciences, Engineering, Health & Medicine, Mass Media, Military & Para-military, Office & Administration Support, Personal Services, Sales & marketing, Social Sciences, Sports, Social Services and Transportation.■

WE HELP TO BUILD A SUCCESSFUL CAREER

Next Steps: Choosing a Career Path To Success

There are three major components for building career success. The major effort goes in understanding the three factors namely, your Individuality, the occupations and the aspirations you hold. Aligning the three is the most critical part of the career guidance and planning process. Once these factors get aligned there is a strong motivational effect and clarity of purpose for each activity you do. It is not just about choosing an education course; it is about choosing an occupation that suits you and aligning academic efforts towards that.

What is Career Planning?

Career Planning is about making career choices and decisions and planning the future considering the challenges and opportunities. It concerns the career management tasks of individuals such as decisionmaking, life-stage transitions, dealing with stress etc. It is also about taking control of one's employability.
